LIST OF

GERMAN IRREGULAR VERBS.

The following list includes all the so-called 'irregular' verbs: that is to say, all the verbs of the Old (or strong) conjugation, along with those of the New (or weak) conjugation which do not follow the regular method of inflection. The latter class are distinguished by being put in ordinary type throughout. In the former class, forms given in full-faced type (thus, gebacken) are those which are alone in use; for those in ordinary type (thus, bäckst, bäckt), the more regular forms, or those made after the manner of the New conjugation, are also allowed. Forms enclosed in parenthesis are unusual or poetical or dialectic.

No verb is given in the list as a compound. Those which do not occur as simple verbs have hyphens prefixed to all their forms.
